

"Back to action!" Dacre Montgomery, who portrays Jason Lee Scott a.k.a. the Red Ranger, has shared an interesting new still from Lionsgate's upcoming Power Rangers reboot featuring himself waking up abruptly from what looks to be a nightmare of sorts, although there's an equally good chance that this scene takes place right before the sequence in the trailer where Jason discovers his new strength and upgraded physique. The photo also provides a look at his room, which is covered in sports memorabilia and trophies, hinting at his past as a star football player. On another note, reshoots are currently underway in Vancouver for the Power Rangers movie and according to YVRShoots, there may be some heartbreak on the way for our Rangers as some cast & crew were spotted filming scenes at a cemetery. This is the first report of any such scene, so there's a pretty good chance that this is a new scene being added to the film. Check out the new

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/action/jason-wakes-up-from-a-nightmare-in-a-new-photo-from-power-rangers-a146115>