

JEFFREY WRIGHT CAST AS BEETEE IN LIONSGATE'S THE HUNGER GAMES: CATCHING FIRE Santa Monica, CA, September 7, 2012- Lionsgate® and the filmmakers of The Hunger Games: Catching Fire are pleased to announce that Jeffrey Wright has been cast in the role of Beetee in the much anticipated film adaptation of Suzanne Collins' worldwide smash hit novel Catching Fire. Hailing from District 3, Beetee earns the nickname "Volts" because of his electronics expertise. Critically acclaimed and known to theater, film and television audiences alike, Wright garnered a Tony® Award in 1994 for his work in Tony Kushner's Pulitzer Prize-winning epic "Angels in America" and reprised his "Angels" role in HBO's 2003 mini-series adaptation of the play, earning both a Golden Globe® and an Emmy® for his groundbreaking performance. Since then he has played memorable roles in films as diverse as Basquiat, Source Code, Casino Royale and Quantum Of Solace, W, Syriana, and Cadillac
