

Jennifer Lawrence has seemed ready to move on from the X-Men franchise for a while now, especially as the role of Mystique demands so much time in the make-up chair. No longer an up and coming actress, she doesn't need to play the character any more, and her contract wrapped up with the critically panned X-Men: Apocalypse. After that, why would she want to return in the next instalment? Asked in the video below whether or not she'd like to join the Guardians of the Galaxy franchise alongside Passengers star Chris Pratt, Lawrence replied: "Oh, my God, I would love to! I actually don't even know — I would choose that over doing another X-Men movie." Ouch, that's not something Fox will be happy to hear, but Marvel Studios President Kevin Feige may already be making some calls! "I won't be Mystique in the X-Men movies," she added, "but I would love to be Mystique in 'Guardians of the Galaxy.' I wonder if

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/guardians_of_the_galaxy/jennifer-lawrence-would-rather-star-in-a-guardians-of-the-a147568