

After just 2 episodes, CW's Arrow is a certified hit and has won over the majority of skeptics and naysayers. If, you've been following the coverage on the site you're well aware that we've only scratched the surface so far in what's still to come. We have Deadshot debuting tonight at 8pm on the CW, Deathstroke, The Royal Flush Gang, Firefly and many more intriguing possibilities and characters to see before the season wraps. One such character, Helena Bertinelli aka Huntress will be making her debut in episode 6. "People love their comic books. It has already got such a support and a strong foundation and you know people are going to watch it. [The show] is more dark and gritty and is kind of more along the lines of Christopher Nolan's Batman. She's kind of like the female version of Arrow in that they're vigilantes

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=69188>