

Crave Online have posted the Q and A with Abrams from the TCA press tour, and although the Super 8 director doesn't say too much about his currently in production Star Trek sequel, he does comment on Benicio Del Toro and the role he would have played in the movie. No details of course, but he does confirm that whichever character he was being sought to play will still be a part of the story. He also says he has no immediate plans to incorporate any Next Generation characters into his movies.. Q: There was a little explosion online when you were trying to cast Benicio del Toro in "Star Trek 2." What did you make of that reaction? J.J. Abrams: What do you mean? Q: The speculation and pushback about his character. J.J. Abrams: I was just happy that anyone was interested. Q: Did you have to do away with the character you were going
