

Marvel Studios is undoubtedly moving forward with new Iron Man and Thor installments for their first slate of films post-The Avengers. While they're much-anticipated, I for one was hoping they'd be introducing new characters to the Marvel Cinematic Universe; particularly the long-productive Ant-Man movie. While "drafting" seems to be all director Edgar Wright and co-writer Joe Cornish have to reveal lately, Cornish's recent chat with I Am Rogue isn't too surprising. Check out what was said below. "Yeah, Ant-Man is still going," confirmed Cornish. "Edgar and I were writing on it only the day before yesterday," he admitted. I followed up by asking if they were doing a lot of rewriting on the script. "Yeah, we're just drafting and drafting," he said. Finally, I wanted to find out if Cornish thought that Edgar would still end up directing the movie. "Yes," Cornish answered. "I'm just a humble writer on that one," he

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=41371&t=Joe\_Cornish\_Offers\_Vague\_iAnt-Mani\_Update