

While speculation continues on whether Deathstroke is still appearing as the main antagonist in Ben Affleck and Warner Bros. Batman movie, Joe Manganiello has revealed that he's preparing for the role despite the project being on shaky ground. Appearing on the Dragon Talk podcast, the former True Blood and Magic Mike actor revealed that he's read every single Deathstroke comic and started sword training. "I'm somebody that likes to start preparing way ahead of time. So I've read almost all the comic books involving him. Just to get the information out of them. Some of them are useful. Some of them are not going to be useful. Because ultimately the script—that's my text. I have to play that. I started katana training recently. Like live sword training and I started meeting with various martial arts teachers and discussing with them. 'Ok, so what are the most offensive styles of martial arts'. Ones where you're not waiting for someone to attack you but ones

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman/joe-manganiello-says-hes-started-katana-training-for-deathstroke-role-in-a148841>