

While speaking to Bleeding Cool about his Elite Squad movies Padhila also dropped a few more details about his planned remake of Paul Verhoven's Robocop, a movie steeped just as much in social commentary as it was action. He confirms that his version will follow a similar path by stating that it will be about a man being turned into a product by a corporation.. But he also gives some intriguing hints about the actual plot and what type of future we can expect to see Alex Murphy police.. Wars in the future are going to be fought with drones. We won't send a plane with a pilot in, it will be drone. It's getting that way now and ten years from now that's how wars are going to be fought. But what if a drone goes wrong – who is to blame then? Do you blame the drone? And that problem

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=50545&t=Jos_Padhila_ROBOCOP_Will_Be_About_A_Man_Being_Turned_Into_A_Product_By_A_Corporation