

While at the press junket for Men in Black 3 (via /Film), actor Josh Brolin discussed his role in Spike Lee's upcoming Oldboy remake. He talks about the current cast members for the film, confirming the involvement of Elizabeth Olsen and Sharlto Copley. "Oldboy will be an experience, man. It won't be like Men In Black, I'll tell you that much. I'm really happy about it. We've gotten amazing actors: Liz Olsen, who I think is fantastic and we also got Sharlto Copley from District 9 who I think is going to be unbelievable. He just wrote me an e-mail and was like, 'Look, I've got to get this out of the way. Dude, Goonies is my favorite film of all time,' which I thought was really sweet. And now I'm going to make 20 years of your life miserable." Additionally, Brolin revealed that he sought approval from Chan-wook Park (director of

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=59092>