

Talking to USA Today, director Joss Whedon has offered a humorous (and extremely analytical) take on who would win if Black Widow and Buffy the Vampire Slayer were to come to blows. He also talks about his favourite comic books and more in the interview, so be sure to click on the link below to check it out in full. Don't forget to sound off with who YOU think would emerge victorious in the usual place. "Buffy would go easy at first, but as soon as Natasha popped her with a Widow Sting, she'd start bringing some slayer brawn to the fray. Natasha's fast, but a couple of good connects and she's wobbling, possibly something broken -- she whips out her glock and now Buffy's dodging -- right where Natasha wants her. Natasha shoots the cable holding the steel barrels and they tumble onto Buffy, nearly burying her -- Buffy just

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=57690>