

Just yesterday, I brought news about the appearance of Batman villain Firefly at the tail-end of the first season of Arrow and today, we're talking about Batman himself....as well as Superman and Wonder Woman. Before the pilot episode of Arrow aired, the producing team behind Arrow; Greg Berlanti, Guggenheim, and Andrew Kriesberg were pretty adamant about Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman and other fantastical DC characters not appearing on the show. Well, as we begin to 'dip our toes' into the first season of Arrow, it looks as if they make be taking a softer stance on DC's Trinity in perhaps a trend that could continue to unfold as the season progresses? Below, we're already getting acknowledgement of a larger Arrow universe that contains some staples and locales familiar to fans of DC's preeminent superhero trio. "We're open to anything and everything; I'm not entirely sure you'll be

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=68822>