

On paper, this seems like a match made in heaven. The director of arguably the best installment in The Fast and the Furious franchise (Fast Five) spearheaded development on a revitalized retelling of an '80s classic. What's not to love? It definitely can't be any worse than the most recent, 2008 attempt to reboot the beloved talking car action show. There's no casting news to speak of at the moment but expect an announcement fairly soon, possibly before the end of 2016. Check out the official press release below. The digital series is expected to be released some time in 2017.

YOMYOMF, JUSTIN LIN, MACHINIMA AND NBC UNIVERSAL PARTNER TO PRODUCE DIGITAL SERIES REBOOT OF THE BELOVED 80'S NBC TELEVISION SERIES KNIGHT RIDER

Los Angeles, CA –October XX, 2016 – Machinima, the first global Many2Many programming service focusing on fandom and gamer culture, announced today that it has partnered with YOMYOMF, Justin Lin and NBCUniversal Brand Development to produce a digital reboot of the 80's NBC television series

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/action/justin-lin-to-helm-knight-rider-series-for-machinima-a146284>