

It has been announced that Katie Cassidy (Supernatural) will star in The Scribbler, a film based on Daniel Schaffer's 2006 Image Comics graphic novel of the same name. The low budget adaptation begins filming later this week and also stars Garret Dillahunt (Winter's Bone), Michelle Trachtenberg (Gossip Girl), Eliza Dushku (Dollhouse), Gina Gershon (Killer Joe), Michael Imperioli (The Lovely Bones), Billy Campbell (The Killing), and former adult film star Sasha Grey (The Girlfriend Experience). The supporting cast is rounded out with Ashlynn Yennie (The Human Centipede), Kunal Nayyar (The Big Bang Theory), and T.V. Carpio (Limitless). John Suits will direct the screenplay which was written by Daniel Schaffer. The Scribbler concerns Suki (Cassidy), a young woman confronting her destructive mental illness using "The Siamese Burn", an experimental machine designed to eliminate multiple personalities. The closer Suki comes to being "cured", she's haunted by a thought...what if the last unwanted identity turns out
