

Talking to the Los Angeles Times, the 52 year old actor went into detail about what it was like to work alongside director Matthew Vaughn. You can read more by clicking on the link at the bottom of the page, but here is a sample of the most interesting excerpts. "He's not gentle in the way he directs, to say the least. Matthew would sit by the monitor and shout something that's borderline insulting. But every time he said something -- or screamed something -- it was right on the mark." "He's not like a ball coach, he's not talking all the time. I could shoot an entire day and do a bunch of takes and he wouldn't say anything. So it's not like he's constantly on you. There are directors who say a lot because they like the sound of themselves directing. They think that's what directors do. He doesn't have any

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=38242&t=Kevin\_Bacon\_Shares\_His\_Thoughts\_On\_iX-Men\_First\_Classi\_Director\_Matthew\_Vaughn