

In addition to its loveable band of losers, the original Guardians of the Galaxy film owes a large part of the success to its fantastic soundtrack, Awesome Mix, Vol. 1. The sequel's soundtrack, Vol. 2, is shaping up to be just as "awesome", with songs from groups such as Sweet, Fleetwood Mac, and Jay and the Americans, just to name a few. Marvel Studios President Kevin Feige told Screen Rant that music plays a much more important role in the story in the upcoming film; not only will some songs factor into the plot, but it seems that Peter Quill's penchant for catchy tunes has caught on with some of his teammates, specifically Groot. "The music is all off the tape. It's all off of Volume 2," said Feige. "I would say that the other Guardians now know that music is a thing for Peter, so in early scenes, what you see baby Groot here - which he's just 'Groot' in the movie,

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/guardians_of_the_galaxy/vol_2/kevin-feige-and-james-gunn-talk-groot-and-the-a148765