

It won't happen in Infinity War, but will we eventually see Marvel's Netflix characters join The Avengers up on the big screen? Considering it's all supposed to be set in the same universe you would think it's a no-brainer, but Marvel Studios representatives have always seemed reluctant to offer anything in the way of confirmation that plans are in place. During a press junket for Doctor Strange, Collider asked Kevin Feige if he thought the likes of Daredevil, Luke Cage and Jessica Jones would ever make the transition to the MCU, and Marvel's head honcho explained that it'll only happen when the time is right. "I think it's extremely impressive what Netflix has done and it will be the same answer I always give, which is, "It all depends on timing." It all depends on how to do it because I don't think what anybody wants to do is have such important characters show up for one second. Black Panther and Spider-Man to

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/tv/marvel/kevin-feige-explains-why-hes-hesitant-to-introduce-marvels-netflix-a146204>