

March may be one of the busiest movie months of the year (not to mention, one of the busiest months in recent memory) with the arrival of five major potential blockbusters: Logan, Kong: Skull Island, Beauty and the Beast, Power Rangers, and Ghost in the Shell. Just moments ago, Skull Island star Samuel L. Jackson dropped an awesome new TV spot for the upcoming Jordan Vogt-Roberts-directed film giving us a pretty badass introduction to his character, Lieutenant Colonel Packard, who lovingly refers to himself as the cavalry. Also, thanks to Collider, we have a second TV spot with even more action-packed footage of the entire cast trying to understand and survive the King of Apes. Check out the two spots below: Get Ready to Meet The King!!! #kongskullisland #KongIsKing pic.twitter.com/9fngKqSG5g — Samuel L. Jackson (@SamuelLJackson) January 20, 2017
