

In its report, Deadline describes the new version as follows: "It centers on Catherine (Kreuk), a tough-minded NYPD Homicide Detective haunted by witnessing her mother's murder 9 years ago and the killers' quick demise at the hands of a Beast. After years of searching, Catherine finally finds the Beast, Vincent Koslow, the survivor of a military experiment that went disastrously wrong, and becomes the protector of his secret life as a bestial superhero." Vincent's last name is a tribute to B&B creator Ron Koslow, who serves as an executive producer on this version though it's unclear how involved he'll be in the potential series itself. Okay, a bit of Beauty and the Beast editorializing here: While this version could work in its own right, it's bewildering that they've decided that this is a remake of the '80s show. Whereas in that show Vincent was a kind of lion-man, who lived in an underground

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/scifimediazzone/news/?a=54808&title=Kristin Kreuk Cast in CW's Beauty and the Beast