

Following the news that Georgina Campbell has landed the lead in SySy's Superman prequel series, Krypton, Deadline reports that the show has now rounded out its series regular roles. Former Game of Thrones alum Ian McElhinney will play Seg-El's grandfather Val-El; Elliot Cowan (DaVinci's Demons, Luther) has been cast as Magistrate Daron-Vex; Lyta's mother Primus Alura Zod will be played by Ann Ogbomo (World War Z); Rasmus Hardiker (Your Highness) will be an engineer named Kem; while Wallis Day (The Royals) and Aaron Pierre (Tennison) will portray Nyssa-Vex and Dev-Em respectively. You can find out more about each of these characters HERE. David S. Goyer and Damian Kindler are executive producers on Krypton, which doesn't have a premiere date set.

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/superman/krypton-rounds-out-its-cast-with-former-game-of-thrones-actor-ian-a145875>