

Continuity has never exactly been a The X-Men movie franchise's strongest suit, and that's never been more apparent following the release of this latest Logan image from director James Mangold. A recent rumor suggested that The Office co-creator/writer Stephen Merchant was going to play Caliban in the final Wolverine flick, but fans were hesitant to believe this as that character had only just appeared in Bryan Singer's X-Men: Apocalypse, as played by Tómas Lemarquis. Now, while there's a chance Merchant is simply playing a mutant that looks a hell of a lot like Caliban, it does seem unlikely when paired with the rumor. Take a look at the pic below and see what you think. Logan is set for release on March 3rd, 2017.

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/the\_wolverine/latest-official-logan-image-gives-us-a-first-look-at-stephen-a146070