

Talking to Hero Complex, Lauren Shuler Donner has revealed a little more about the development of X-Men: First Class (it seems that both Cyclops and Jean Grey were both included when talks of the prequel began) as well as commenting in the critical success of the movie and chances of any of the characters getting their own spin off's in the near future. The answer? Probably not... On How The Idea For X-Men: First Class Developed: It sort of happened during "X2." During a lunch break, I said, 'You know, wouldn't it be funny if we could see young X-Men. Like a young Cyclops and a young Jean Grey, as they first visited the mansion. We all thought it was dynamite, but then you get consumed with the movie that you're doing. Years went by, and Simon Kinsberg went into this executive's office and said 'Hey, there's this comic book — 'First

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46158&t=Lauren_Shuler_Donner_Details_iX-Men_First_Class_Development_No_Plans_For_Further_Spin-Offs