

Tonight's episode of Legends of Tomorrow took us all over the place, but the big reveal came when we learned that Damien Darhk and the Reverse-Flash are in cahoots and have been the whole time. With the Legion of Doom on the way, that's something which should have major ramifications for the team, but in this first look at next week's instalment, it appears as if they'll be getting some assistance from the Justice Society of America. Well, once they manage to stop fighting with them that is! The Legends travel to Nazi-occupied Paris, but find themselves surrounded by the Justice Society of America (AKA JSA.) The Legends discover a time aberration that threatens the JSA, but the JSA wants nothing to do with them or their help. Nevertheless, the Legends force their way into the JSA's mission to intercept and seize a mysterious package. Nate (Nick Zano) is desperate to prove that he should be part of the team, but he
