

As the marketing for Logan continues ahead of its release next month, we have this stunning (if a little bleak) black and white sequence for you to take a look at. The clip sees the former Wolverine (Hugh Jackman) driving around the streets of Las Vegas, as we hear him inquire about purchasing a Sunseeker boat over the phone. This plays out like it could be the opening scene of the film, though it's also possible that it's purely for promotional purposes and won't appear in the final cut at all. Either way, it's certainly an interesting and ballsy way to promote a superhero flick. Check it out below and let us know what you think.

pic.twitter.com/lrOtx4mVY — Mangold (@mang0ld) February 9, 2017 In the near future, a weary Logan cares for an ailing Professor X in a hide out on the Mexican border. But Logan's attempts to hide from the world and his legacy are up-ended when a young mutant arrives, being pursued by dark

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/logan/logan-director-james-mangold-shares-a-haunting-black-and-white-a148823>