

CBM, along with several other movie sites, has been sent the following press release and trailer for Liberator, a short movie starring the man known best to comic book fans for his iconic role as the Hulk in the 1970s television series and more recently as the voice of the character in The Incredible Hulk (2008) and The Avengers. Personally, I always enjoyed seeing Ferrigno take on comedic roles in the likes of King of Queens and I Love You Man, but this looks like good fun. Be sure to sound off with your thoughts in the usual place and visit the official site by clicking HERE. The trailer for LIBERATOR a new 20-minute action-packed short film/presentation pilot starring Lou Ferrigno ("The Incredible Hulk") from Coverage Ink Productions has hit the web by storm today. LIBERATOR stars Ferrigno as a disgraced, washed-up ex-superhero whose secret black ops past comes back to haunt

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=54904&t=Lou_The_Hulk_Ferrigno_Heads_Back_Into_Action_In_Debut_Trailer_For_LIBERATOR