

Following the commercial success of Batman: The Killing Joke this past summer, the DC Animated Movie Universe really seems to be embracing that adult-skewing R-rating because they've just announced that their next full-length feature, Justice League Dark, will also sport the same certification, thanks to "some disturbing violence." IGN debuted the first official trailer for the eagerly-awaited film earlier this afternoon and have also uncovered new details regarding the supernatural heroes and the voices that will breathe life into them. The team will consist of John Constantine, Swamp Thing, Deadman, Zatanna, Etrigan the Demon, and of course, Batman. Constantine will be voiced by his live-action counterpart Matt Ryan while Jason O'Mara will return to voice Batman, Tomb Raider mo-cap actress Camilla Luddington will voice Zatanna, Nicholas Turturro will voice Deadman, Ray Chase will voice Jason Blood/Etrigan, Jerry O'Connell will voice Superman, and Rosario Dawson will voice Wonder Woman. They'll be joined by Jeremy Davis (Justified) as Ritchie, Enrico Colantoni (Galaxy Quest) as Felix Faust, Alfred

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/justice\_league/magically-charged-new-trailer-for-justice-league-dark-confirms-an-a146809