

The soon-to-be Superman, who has two brothers in the British military, met with 100 Airmen to sign autographs and pose for photos. 2/1/2012 - EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. -- Actor Henry Cavill took a break from the rigorous shooting schedule for the Warner Brothers film "Man of Steel" to meet with Edwards Airmen, pose for photographs, and sign autographs at the Joshua Tree Dining Facility here Jan. 31. "I have such great respect for military members and what they do," Cavill said. "It's important that they know how valuable their service is. It is a pleasure to tell them how much they're appreciated." Senior Airman Lyndee Bennett, 95th Security Forces Squadron, summed the experience up with, "It was great that he took the time out of his busy schedule to do something so wonderful for the military. He was incredibly nice. It's amazing how an event like this humanizes the actors."
