

On March 31st an auction was held for Man of Steel set decorations, props, and wardrobe. One of the more intriguing pieces is a board containing notes and articles written by Lois Lane. First up Lois Lane's noticeboard which has a couple of Daily Planet stories on it attributed to her that are about a poisoning of the Metropolis area by an unknown contamination. There were notes and a plane ticket etc on the board too. Very cool. Images Courtesy of thepropstop.files.wordpress.com (Click Image to Enlarge) When I think Superman and contamination the first thing that pops into my head is the sub-plot from the television show Smallville. In Smallville, high levels of green Kryptonite radiation can cause normal Humans to mutate and acquire superhuman abilities (these mutants are usually called "meteor freaks"), although an outside catalyst (such as a strong electrical charge or a meteor shower) is usually required. - Wikipedia We know director

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=57709>