

Talking to Hero Complex, Michael Shannon revealed that his openness in the past while talking about playing General Zod in Man of Steel has landed him in hot water with Warner Bros. on more than one occasion. "I got signaled that less is more. It's kind of curious. It is Superman. So I think everybody kind of knows what happens, you know? Nothing's going to be a huge shock."

"There are legions of fans salivating, who will literally spend the next year and a half looking at the clock, waiting for this movie," the actor added when talk turned to his foray into the world of comic books and the dedicated fan base which comes with it. "That's just the way it is. I don't know why. Me, personally, I'm not a huge fan. I can't even read comic books. I don't know which panel to look at next. I hardly ever

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=53099&t=MAN_OF_STEEL_Star_Michael_Shannon_Im_Not_A_Huge_Fan_Of_Comic_Books