

Talking at the WonderCon that is currently being held in Anaheim, California, check out what director Marc Webb has to say regarding his upcoming movie, The Amazing Spider-Man; including possible easter eggs - one which involves Donald Glover, who campaigned for the titular role several months prior, the movie's running time, deleted scenes, the use of 3D, James Horner's score, and more in the video interview courtesy of Collider below. - If anyone remembers Donald Glover's Twitter campaign to play Spider-Man, Webb said Andrew Garfield put a Donald Glover poster in Peter Parker's bedroom. - The movie will probably be around two-hours long. - When asked about Easter Eggs, Webb said, "There are moments, there are distant mountains as J.R.R. Tolkien says that refer to...that are little winks and we'll see if the audience likes it enough maybe they'll get another movie." - Webb learned after the first screening

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Jolt17/news/?a=56540>