

Taking to the Millarworld forums, the comic book writer and creator has shared his thoughts on the future of superhero movies and why he thinks it's unlikely that we'll ever see the likes of Aquaman and The Flash hit the big screen. Having read this, I personally think it all makes a lot of sense and agree with Millar on many points. Be sure to share your thoughts in the usual place, and head on over to the site by clicking the link below to read the full version of the following. I plan to focus solely on creator-owned for AT LEAST the next couple of years and so these trends are important. It's essential that nobody comes along and messes up the very successful system we've had for the last decade or so. But we have to keep things in perspective. Any Chicken Littles screeching about Green Lantern being a flop

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=40515&t=Mark_Millar_Comments_On_Future_Of_Superhero_Movies_Calls_Green_Lantern_A_Blip