

My fellow Scotsman and comic book legend Mark Millar has launched his very own production company. In a special feature with The Scottish Sun Mark has detailed why he has taken this step and what he hopes to achieve. I have shared some excerpts below - but be sure to check out the full article by clicking the source link below. On why he choose to establish Millarworld Productions It would be easy for me to take off and just set up base in Los Angeles. But I feel passionately about doing here what the director Peter Jackson achieved in New Zealand. He's as far away from Hollywood as we are but proved geography was no barrier by creating one of the biggest movie franchises of all time with Lord Of The Rings." Jackson made New Zealand the main star of his films and Mark admitted: "The scenery is stunning but we can
