

It's thought that Nacho Vigalondo (Timecrimes) will begin work on the big screen adaptation of Supercrooks at some point next year, so we're obviously still a good while away from any casting news. With a large ensemble cast, it should be VERY interesting to see who signs up for the various characters featured in the critically acclaimed Mark Millar and Leinil Yu series. Last night, Millar took to his Twitter account (@mrmarkmillar) to share his thoughts on who he thinks should play 'Johnny Bolt', the leader of the gang who pull off the thrilling heist. As you can see, this is just speculation on the Millar's part, but after two successful adaptations - Wanted, Kick-Ass - and more on the way, the writer definitely wouldn't struggle to attract big names like this. Ryan Reynolds should play johnny bolt in our supercrooks movie. He'd be perfect for it. Such a likeable actor.— Mark

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=66950>