

In the July issue of Total Film, it has seemingly been revealed that the director of Casino Royale, Edge of Darkness and most recently, Green Lantern, will in fact NOT be returning for any future installments of Warner Bros. and DC Entertainments latest superhero franchise. Here is an excerpt from their article, while plenty more can be found in the magazine! Inevitably, chat turns to the possibility of follow-ups. Campbell admits it will be nice to have all the backstory and complicated rules of the character already taken care of. "This film has become the instruction manual if they do any further ones. It's what we call pipe laying," he says. Not that he has plans to return for a sequel - like Bond, he loves 'em and leaves 'em." With an all star cast which includes Ryan Reynolds as Hal Jordan, Blake Lively as Carol Ferris and Mark Strong as Sinestro, director

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=37371&t=Martin_Campbell_Not_Planning_On_Returning_To_Direct_iGreen_Lantern_2i