

Thanks to SeasonZero (via MCU Exchange) we might have some new details on two of Marvel's upcoming TV projects: Freeform's Cloak and Dagger, and Hulu's The Runaways. Word is the latter is set to commence production in LA next month, while Cloak and Dagger will also shoot in February, but in New Orleans. While this is not official information, the source has been reliable for this sort of thing in the past. In addition, Production Weekly has learned that the working title for The Runways is Rugrats, while Cloak and Dagger will shoot as Shadows. They've also revealed that Marvel's solo Black Panther movie will be referred to as Motherland while filming. If both shows are indeed scheduled to get going next month, it is slightly odd that we haven't had any casting details for either yet - though this could mean that info on the horizon, so keep an eye on CBM for updates.

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/tv/marvel/runaways/marvels-cloak-dagger-and-the-runaways-rumored-to-begin-a147970>