

Marvel's The Avengers has now grossed an amazing $500 million overseas in just fourteen days of release. After making a further $17.7 million in North America yesterday, its current domestic gross stands at $244,014,897 (reports Box Office Mojo). That's over $744 million in total, making the recent estimations of $900 million - $1 billion by Sunday all the more likely. At this rate, it will definitely hit $300 million domestically by Friday. Also, in news which is sure to get Marvel vs. DC nuts chomping at the bit, The Avengers will today break the record held by The Dark Knight for being the fastest to pass $250 million (in six days compared to eight). While there are some who still doubt that the film will hit $1 billion by Sunday, more and more analysts are predicting that it will, especially after the latest stats show that it's holding up much better
