

Hype is rising more this week for Christopher Nolan's 'Batman' trilogy finale The Dark Knight Rises, with filming well underway, and of course the first official still revealing 'Bane.' And now, Variety has revealed three latecomers to the ensemble cast. Matthew Modine & Tom Conti have joined "The Dark Knight Rises," Variety's Jeff Sneider exclusively reports. In keeping with the Christopher Nolan tradition, there wasn't a chance in hell we were going to be able to figure out who they'd play. Kid actor Joey King has also joined the cast. More on that in a bit. Matthew Modine, 59, is known for Full Metal Jacket and his Oscar-nominated performance in Reuben, Reuben. And Tom Conti, 69, has appeared in vintage flicks - Merry Christmas Mr. Lawrence, Shirley Valentine and more recently Blind Revenge. And rising star Joey King, 11, has appeared in this year's Battle: Los Angeles. With little to speculate

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=37660&t=Matthew Modine Tom Conti Joey King Join iThe Dark Knight Risesi In Secret Roles