

Sony's viral campaign for Men In Black III is at it again. The site TheMenInBlackSuitsAreReal.com is said to be ran by a 14 year old kid who goes by the online handle BugEyes126, and is obsessed with proving that The Men In Black are real. He has updated the site with at post of a doodle he did while he said he was in class, check it out below with the post of why he did it and what he thinks it means below. I was doodling in science class yesterday, this image that I just couldn't get out of my head. Wasn't sure if it was something I've seen before or maybe just from a dream I had. My lab partner saw it in my notebook and said it kind of looked like some large particle accelerator? So I looked it up, and these "colliders" can cost over 6 billion dollars! Yeah,

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=53445&t=ME_N_IN_BLACK_III_Viral_Site_Updated