

When some official production photos from Ridley Scott's Alien: Covenant surfaced, actor Michael Fassbender - who was already confirmed to return as the mysterious android David - was seen sporting a brunette look as opposed to the blonde hair he had in Prometheus. This led to speculation that the X-Men: Apocalypse star might be playing another role in the film in addition to David, and as it turns out, he is! Fassbender confirmed in an interview with The Irish Times that he is playing a second android named Walter, presumably an assistant onboard the Covenant. "I am allowed to say I am playing two robots – Walter and David. I think what's great about it is that Ridley has gone back to the original DNA of Alien, the horror element of that. But is also has the scope and the scale of Prometheus. Ridley has cut it already. He is a machine. He is an incredible human being and he was in such good

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/sci-fi/michael-fassbender-confirms-hes-playing-two-androids-in-ridley-scotts-a146433>