

While speaking to LA TIMES -HERO COMPLEX, Michael Fassbender talked about his latest project, Prometheus. Fassbender is currently on his third week of filming the Ridley Scott helmed prequel to the Alien Franchise. On the filming of Prometheus: "I walk on the set and I feel like I'm walking on a spaceship," Fassbender said. "It's breathtaking. All the various panels and screens and it's just dealing with a top-notch art department and carpenters and the riggers and everything that goes into putting that together. It's just, well, breathtaking, all of it." On the secrecy of his character in the film: "I feel I've got it at my fingertips, it's there but challenging and, you know, I'm excited. I've got a few ideas that I'm running with and I think I've got a grasp on it but it's always something that, organically, moving on its own course. I'm having a lot of fun with
