

I'm doing the sequel to Sin City. That would be Sin City 2. I'm going to Ft. Worth, Texas, and there is supposed to be some sort of a symposium or some Sin City panel where we're going to talk about the film. I'm looking forward to that, too. Michael Madsen is one of those rare actors that actually shies away from the spotlight. He hardly ever grants an interview, but when he does it is delightfully frank and honest. He is best known for his role as Mr. Blonde in Quentin Tarantino's freshman masterpiece, Reservoir Dogs. He absolutely steals the show with his horrifically violent scene involving a cop and an ear, which you can watch below. While the actor doesn't have much range, he makes up for it with pure machismo, which seeps out of his pores like butter. He has that rough gruff demeanor that Charles Bronson and Lee

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=58165>