

Source: Thisisjersy.com Michael Shannon is a fast rising star in Hollywood and he'll reach new levels in Zack Snyder's Superman reboot as the villainous alien General Zod. Shannon reportedly put the smack-down on his Australian co-star, Russel Crowe, who plays Superman's biological father Jor-el. "I think he's out of the hospital, although I left as soon as he couldn't get up off the floor," he joked. "I just said, 'I'm done with you', and I just walked out, so hopefully I won't get fired from the movie. That would be awful, because they are paying me an awful lot of money," he added. It has been speculated that the fight between the two characters will take place on the alien planet of Krypton, and will showcase Superman's home world as never before seen in previous feature films. Michael went on to state that he may be a little bit nervous about the pressure

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=50394&t=emMichael_Shannonem_On_His_Fight_With_emRussell_Croweem_In_The_emMan_of_Steelem