

Mondo, the Texas based Alamo Drafthouse's poster boutique, has already made some excellent posters for the likes of Star Wars, Jurassic Park, Pixar etc and now their new partnership with DC means we will start seeing official posters for their comics and eventually movies. This first one by JC Richard is inspired by Richard Donner's first Superman.. Fortress of Solitude is 12 x 32 in an edition of 390. It'll cost $50 and go on sale at a random time Black Friday, November 25. Here is an excerpt from the press release.. The DC Comics series, in partnership with Sideshow Collectibles, will encompass both comics and films as Mondo artists tackle some of the most iconic characters of all time. "We wanted to kick off the DC Comics series with an art print from arguably the most famous character ever, but in a unique way which focuses on the iconic Fortress of Solitude,"

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsranst/news/?a=50225&t=Mondo_Partners_With_DC_First_Poster_-_Fortress_Of_Solitude_-_To_Go_On_Sale_Black_Friday