

Yesterday JoshW posted a blurb from the interview Joss Whedon did with Entertainment Weekly where he said that The Avengers will take place mostly from Captain America's point of view. Now they have posted the full interview where Whedon says that all The Avengers are loners but Captain America is the ultimate loner, and that him and Chris Evans have worked really hard to keep Cap the 40's Steve Rogers we saw in his solo movie. “[The Avengers] is very much about people who are alone — because I’m writing it.[Captain America] is kind of the ultimate loner in that way. There is an anachronism to him, and Chris and I have always tried to make it, without making it goofy or too obvious, always tried to make him that same grounded '40s Steve Rogers he was in the other movie.” Whedon also said that just because its told from the perspective of

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=52760&t=More From Joss Whedon On THE AVENGERS>