

The extended cut of Suicide Squad will be released on Digital HD on November 15th, so we're just days away from being able to see more of what Warner Bros. left on the cutting room floor. Much of the new footage will seemingly revolve around The Joker, and in this new promo TV spot (via Batman-News), we get to see a brand new shot of the villain as he has a conversation with Harley Quinn. It's previously been reported that the studio altered the relationship between the two characters during post production to make it a little less dark and abusive. With that in mind, it should be interesting to see whether any of those elements are put back into the movie and if we'll get to see The Joker confront Task Force X. That was one of many scenes in the trailers cut from the final version! New Jared Leto Joker footage in the #SuicideSquad Digital HD TV spot! pic.twitter.com/XW6HpamCPH — Batman-News.com

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/suicide\_squad/more-never-before-seen-footage-of-jared-letos-joker-revealed-in-a146732