

Thanks to a heads up from Tim Burton.JP we have a new look at some toy concept art from the ever so famously doomed Superman Lives project. Not only does the concept art gives us another look at the Superman world Tim Burton was creating, but its gives some plot information as well. This includes what is being called the Eradicator suit that is designed to keep Superman's powers during the "period of darkness" that would have been in the film. Another piece of art that is featured is the Superman suit that would have been featured early on in the movie. Although it has some classic design elements in there, it is still a complete 180 from any other versions of the Superman costume. Superman's Suit Superman appears in this suit in the beginning of the movie, until his "death."Reflects an updated" 90's look" to Superman's traditional suit. Maintains signature colors of the
