

Synopsis: The following episode represents director Kevin Tancharoen's "different take on the Mortal Kombat universe," combining the perfect amount of gritty realism mixed with a hint of mysticism... When Lord Raiden, God of Thunder and protector of Earth, finds himself in an earthly mental institution in the year 2011, his 'delusions' are treated with some rather primitive forms of therapy (involving an ECT machine and an ice pick). Nonetheless, Blue, his beautiful, fragile yet insane fellow inmate, is Raiden's only hope of escaping the mental hospital and making his way to the Mortal Kombat tournament to defend Earthrealm from Shao Khan. This is one that I've been waiting for! I think it is EXCELLENT, y favorite one by far! Ryan Robbins portrayal of Raiden is sick, excellent acting, excellent effects! What do you all think?

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BottledUpLikeSmoke/news/?a=37422&amp;t=IMortal\_Kombat\_Legacy\_Raideni\_Now\_Online