

In a recent interview, Robert Greenblatt - chairman of NBC Entertainment - discusses the reasons why the pilot for the planned Wonder Woman TV reboot starring Adrienne Palicki as Wonder Woman. He praised the pilot for what it was, but claimed that it wouldn't fit with their current schedule. He also shares his thoughts on the early pictures released with Palicki in the suit. On how the pilot wouldn't fit with their current schedule, and what he thought of the pilot overall... "I hate to disappoint anybody. I know there are legions of fans of the original show. I don't know if it's cursed or what. I just have this one experience. They made a really fine pilot and Adrienne Palicki did a fantastic job. You look at what you have, what you need, and it just didn't seem to fit in with what we were doing. "We did what was best for

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=37333&t=NBC_Explains_Why_They_Didnt_Pick_Up_IWonder_Womani