

The DC Films Universe may be light on the jokes, but next February, DC's television side is going to bring the funny with Powerless, an all-new comedy series on NBC. Earlier today, the network announced that the Vanessa Hudgens-led series will make its long-awaited premiere on Thursday, February 2 at 8:30 p.m. ET. The series, which received a positive reception at San Diego Comic-Con in July, centers around Hudgens' character, Emily Locke, an insurance adjuster that specializes in helping those affected by damage caused by superheroes during their many escapades. In addition to the former High School Musical star, the series will also feature Danny Pudi, Alan Tudyk, Christina Kirk, and Ron Funches in series regular roles. So, what do you guys think? Will you be tuning in? Sound off with your thoughts below! Save the day! #Powerless is coming Thursday, February 2 at 8:30/7:30c on @NBC. pic.twitter.com/2oxyt4qyoK — Powerless (@NBCPowerless) December 8, 2016 In the first comedy series set in the universe of DC Comics, Vanessa Hudgens
