

Filming for Iron Man 3 took place yesterday at Cape Fear River. Stuntmen and women were suspended from cables and carried across the body of water. Based on the costumes (flight attendant) of some of the actors it's pretty safe to assume that this stunt is for a scene in the movie in which Iron Man will have to save a plane full of people. Which is something that has been rumored for a few months. Images Courtesy of StarNewsOnline (Click Images to Enlarge)

Work on the Iron Man 3 production continued along the Cape Fear River in downtown Wilmington as actors suspended from cables were seen flying overhead during the filming of a stunt Monday July 16, 2012.
