

Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice production designer Patrick Tatopoulos has shared a new piece of concept art from the movie, and as you can see, it features a new look at the "bat creature" which attacked Bruce Wayne during his nightmare. Many fans assumed that this was actually Man-Bat and that the Dark Knight was seeing one of his many foes, but it now appears as if it's just a monster. Even so, this artwork is great, and it's interesting to get an idea of the process which went into creating it. Tatopoulos has also been hired to work on Justice League, so with any luck, we'll one day get to see some of his work from that too. As for a trailer, there's still no word on when it might land, though it being attached to Kong: Skull Island still seems like the most likely possibility. What do you guys think?

My bat creature from BATMAN VS SUPERMAN Design and Photoshop artwork.

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman_vs_superman/new-batman-v-superman-dawn-of-justice-concept-art-focuses-on-a148632